We ate here on our first evening in Oamaru and there was no point looking anywhere else for our second evening - it was so good we just had to return! The food was freshly cooked and very high quality. Andrew, the chef, came over to describe the dishes on offer- it was obvious he had a love for food and took pride in his dishes. He was also very accommodating when a vegetarian in our party couldn't decide what to eat- he suggested choices which were not on the menu and made a dish especially for her. Service was very friendly and prices very reasonable.
